SAILOR HELD FOR RANSOM AND TORTURED

Three Arrested for Abduction—Demanded $2,640 to Pay for Lost Drugs

WAS HELD CAPTIVE MORE THAN MONTH

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP).—An international smuggling ring's drastic retribution against a French seaman, who inadvertently threw into the sea a package of narcotics, was revealed today when Federal agents arrested two men and a woman, charged with abducting and torturing the sailor.

William Rosen, seaman in the French liner Champlain, was kidnapped on August 2, when the vessel docked in New York. For more than a month he was held captive, bound at the wrists by chafing ropes, while his captors seared his forehead with lighted cigarettes.

DEMANDED RANSOM The kidnappers sought to force Rosen to pay them $2,640 francs ($2,640) for the lost narcotics. He had found the package in a ventilator and threw it overboard, believing it to contain potash.

Cablegrams Rosen's wife in Havre, France, directing her to forward the money, resulted in the investigation that led to the trio's capture.

FEARED DETECTION Apparently fearing detection, the abductors released Rosen yesterday. With the sailor's assistance, a score of Federal operatives, armed with sub-machine guns, surrounded a Brooklyn apartment where Rosen allegedly had been held.

They arrested Salvatore Mancuso, twenty-eight, and his wife, Nellie, twenty-five, both of whom, police said, Rosen identified. They also held Dominick Gelfondo, thirty-one, and the three were charged with kidnapping and conspiracy.

CUBAN LEADER MAKES HOLIDAY

Batista Celebrates Anniversary of His Rise to Head of Army

HAVANA, Sept. 4 (AP).—To the bursting of bombs, the rattle of rifles and the shouting of rioters, Cuba today celebrated its first "fourth of September" holiday.

A year ago tonight Sgt. Fulgencio Batista and his little band of conspirators rose suddenly in their "enlisted men's revolt," ousted their officers, removed the Provisional Government of President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, and in its stead put five executive commissioners of their choosing.

KEEPS HIS GRASP President Ramon Grau San Martin succeeded the commission; President Carlos Hevia replaced Grau; President Carlos Mendive followed Hevia; but Batista, elevated to the rank of colonel and keeping his grasp on the army, remained.

So, today was his day, and little mindful of the ruction raised by groups he and his supporters regarded as radicals, Batista made the most of it.

To honor the little group of army sergeants that Cuba called "multi-ners" one year ago today, the Cabinet had decreed September 4 "the day of the constitutional soldier and sailor," and ordered it placed among the island's national holidays.

INSECTS ATTACK HELPLESS INVALID

Thousands of Red Ants Advance on Paralyzed Woman—Rescued Just in Time

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 4 (AP).—A wealthy paralyzed widow, victim of a fierce attack by a column of thousands of red ants, was reported recovering at her home in Birtton, Okla., today.

Had not a neighbor and a night-watchman, attracted by her screams, entered her home two and a half hours after the attack began, fatal injuries might have been inflicted upon Mrs. A. W. Gott, owner of numerous farm properties.

When rescued by Pat McGraw, a grocery clerk, and L. M. Corbett, a night watchman, she was almost unconscious, and her eyes were swollen shut.

Mrs. Gott has been a helpless invalid for the past five years, able only to move her lips and eyes, and turn her head slightly.

Monstrous Shape Rising From Loch Just Dead Blimp

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP).—The monster of Loch Ness has been found to be the remains of a German blimp, the stern end of which appeared on the surface of the lake at low tide, said Terence McGrath, Cunard-White Star Line executive, who arrived today.

McGrath said the British Admiralty sent two divers down to examine the "monster" and that the remnants of the blimp were discovered.

AUSTRIA HAS NAZI SCARE

Reinforcements Hurried to Patrols on Border—Wild Rumors Fly

VIENNA, Sept. 4 (AP).—A new Nazi scare today sent reinforcements for Austrian patrols along the Yugoslav border hustling to the frontier. The move followed reports that Nazis were in the neighboring country since their abortive putsch in July were planning to recross the border for another attack.

First reports said troops were sent to the border, but officials at Flensburg, capital of Carinthia, said only members of the auxiliary defence corps were moved up.

PLACE SPECIAL GUARDS Special guards were placed at all public buildings in Carinthia, the province nearest Yugoslavia, but late this evening all remained quiet.

A day of wild rumors—one to the effect that Italian troops were again moving to the border—culminated with reports spread through Carinthia that an Italian had attempted to kill King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

A short-wave wireless message, which Vienna police said they intercepted last night, and which the police stated they were unable to decipher, was said to have been sent from sources outside Austria, galvanizing the country's uneasy authorities to immediate action.

MESSAGE ON AIR "Rescue Rintelen (Dr. Anton Rintelen, former Minister to Rome, who was announced as Chancellor when the Nazis staged their uprising) from prison immediately," the message read.

"Failing that," instructions to the Austrian Nazis were asserted to have been, "blow up the wing of the Criminal Court building on Wickenburggasse."

NO CONFIRMATION ROME, Sept. 4 (AP).—Vienna reports that Italian troops were being moved back to the border as a result of Austria's newest Nazi scare found no confirmation here tonight. Usually well-informed persons doubted their accuracy.

TWO PERSONS KILLED IN BOMB EXPLOSION

HAVANA, Sept. 4 (AP).—Two persons were killed tonight and ten others in a crowd of merry-makers wounded by a bomb explosion at a celebration inaugurating a new fire station in Marianao, a suburb of Havana.

One of those killed was a little girl, the other a fireman. Those injured were in the crowd, struck by fragments of the bomb, a large hand grenade.

BURNED IN HIS BED CLOVERDALE, B.C., Sept. 4 (CP).—J. R. Quinn was burned to death in his bed early Sunday when his home, in which he lived alone, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin.

Road Programme Is To Be Secret, B.C. Ministry Declares

Province to Spend $800,000 in Miscellaneous Repairs in Provincial Ridings—Keeping $200,000 in Reserve for Winter

VANCOUVER Island is to get one-tenth of the "Pattullo Million," as it has come to be known in Provincial circles, in a relief-work programme on the work-and-wages plan to start immediately. Hon. F. M. MacPherson, as Minister of Works, announced yesterday in what categories the expenditure would be made, but flatly declined to say where the work would be done. The island is to see $102,000 of the outlay, divided among all ridings.

As Mr. MacPherson put it, if it Alberti-Nansimo riding will have been known that nothing is allocated for Victoria, there might be resentment in Victoria, which contributes handsomely to the revenues of the Province. It is unofficially understood that quite a lot will be spent in Nanaimo, and some each in Esquimalt, Comox and Alberni areas. The exact division in each riding, however, cannot be ascertained.

Mr. MacPherson did say that

Startling Evidence of Submarine Building Monopoly Unfolded

Names B.C. Man as Bravest of All Holders of Victoria Cross

TORONTO, Sept. 4 (CP).—"The bravest of all holders of the Victoria Cross," Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, said today, referring to Lieut. Roland Bourke, V.C., D.S.O., Legion of Honor.

Lieut. Bourke, who left his bushland at Kootenay Lake, B.C., to enter the war, was awarded the Victoria Cross for risking his life in a motor launch to bring off survivors from H.M.S. Vendictive, sunk on May 9, 1918, during the attempt of the British Navy to blockade the submarine base at Ostend. He is a resident of Victoria.

Industrial Codes Are Proposed by Gov't of Ontario

Attorney-General Sends Letters to Provincial Premiers Outlining Proposals and Asking for Their Co-operation—Members of B.C. Cabinet Withholding Comment Until Plan Is Studied

TORONTO, Sept. 4 (CP).—The Ontario Government has set afoot a plan under which the provinces of Canada would unite to codify industry and agree upon nationwide minimum wage laws. Attorney-General Arthur W. Rossbuck outlined his plan to trades union members here and has sent out letters to premiers of the various provinces asking their co-operation.

Duke Starts on Trip to Australia

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Duke of Gloucester, third son of Their Majesties, took off today in one of the Prince of Wales' planes for Paris, starting a trip to Australia, where he will act as the King's personal representative at the official centenary celebration of Melbourne and the State of Victoria.

He will sail from Marseilles aboard H.M.S. Sussex, September 8.

DECLINE TO COMMENT Premier Pattullo and other members of the Provincial Government declined to comment yesterday on the suggestion made by Attorney-General Arthur W. Rossbuck, of Ontario, for a national conference to discuss creation of a Canadian code for industry. The British Columbia Government has not yet received the correspondence, it was stated.

Codification of industry was discussed at the last session of the British Columbia Legislature, when Hon. G. S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, said he would take the issue under review between sessions. Since then, little more has been said on the subject. Mr. Pearson was out of the city yesterday, and could not be reached for his opinion on the Rossbuck announcement.

FIVE KILLED BY ENRAGED FARMER

Alleged Slayer Captured by Policeman After Gun Battle—Old Debt Cause of Trouble

FULTON, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP).—Five persons were killed today in a murderous hail of shotgun slugs, the victims, police said, of the sudden flaring rage of a Fulton man over a long-standing farm debt. Two others, one the alleged slayer, who was captured by a policeman after a gun battle, were wounded. Both are expected to recover.

U.S. TEXTILE STRIKE SPREADING BUT NOT AS LEADERS PREDICTED

Ducks Devastate Wheat Fields in Slave Lake Area

SLAVE LAKE, Alta., Sept. 4 (CP).—A joy to the hunter but a scourge to grain farmers, hundreds of ducks have descended on wheat fields around Lesser Slave Lake and are reported to have devastated sections of the crop.

Ducks Are Stolen in Tithe War

LONDON, Sept. 4 (CP).—The peaceful Kent countryside has been rudely disturbed by a comic-opera "battle of the ducks," an outgrowth of the long-standing tithe-rent war.

One hundred and fifty raiders, with "socks" for the password, outraged police, and protesting ducks appear in the strange story which had all England laughing tonight. On Monday sixty ducks were seized on a farm near Ashford, under the tithe-rent distress order, and taken to the farm of the ecclesiastical commissioners, fifteen miles away.

During the night 150 farmers raided the commissioners' farm, in the best movie manner, and seized the ducks. But their satisfaction was short-lived. This afternoon the police solemnly resealed the ducks for the unpaid tithe amount, and they are back on the commissioners' farm, moodily quacking over nights of peril.

VICTORIA HAS GREAT CHANCE

T. H. Eslick, Recreational Engineer, Sees Vast Possibilities Here

"I had been told that Victoria was a city possessing a quaint charm, but I was not prepared to find a place of such surpassing beauty," declared T. H. Eslick, internationally known exhibition architect, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Wallace, Brentwood Bay. "Through the well directed endeavors of your publicity department the claims of Vancouver Island as a recreation land are becoming known in California. Your publicity, however, is unique in that it does not overstate the attractions of the place. Tourist booklets and advertising matter so often over-emphasize localities, that it is most refreshing to discover that here in Victoria and its surroundings our claims have been most conservative. It is a wise policy, for it means that the visitor will go away satisfied."

NATURE GENEROUS "Nature has been generous—extremely generous—to you," Mr. Eslick continued. "I wonder if you good people of Victoria really appreciate to the full the possibilities and potentialities that are yours. In most places a little of your advantages would be regarded as rich endowment—a great natural resource, to be fostered and developed; to be utilized as a source of great and permanent revenues. It is not criticizing—for that would be unkind—for that would be unkind—for that would be unkind."

WILL WIND UP PRESENT WORK Evangeline Booth to Be Inaugurated Supreme Commander in November

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP).—Evangeline Booth, new supreme commander of the Salvation Army, will sail Saturday for the United States to wind up her job there as "chief bottle-washer."

That was the term the sixty-eight-year-old daughter of the Army's founder, chosen yesterday to succeed General Edward J. Higgins as the organization's general for the next five years, laughingly applied to her twenty-nine years' work in the United States, as she discussed her plans for the future. She plans to return to London about November 10 for her formal inauguration at Albert Hall.

A great part of this executive work, it was expected, Miss Booth would delegate to Commissioner Henry W. Mapp, her chief of staff, and, in yesterday's ballroom, her leading rival for the office of general.

Awards for August Photo Competition Declared by Judges

Mrs. D. Randall, 7 Lotus Street, Is Given First Prize in Contest Conducted by The Daily Colonist—Hundreds of Snapshots Submitted

THE Daily Colonist Amateur Snapshot Competition is over. Yesterday the judges met to select the winners from among the hundreds of prints sent in during August, and today the results are announced.

During the past four months this competition has been sponsored with the aim of finding the most interesting photographs taken this Summer. At the end of each month the entries were judged, fourteen cash prizes being given, the Crystal Finish Photographers, of Victoria, presenting the fifteen contestants, who received honorable mention, with an easel mount enlargement of the print entered.

Pictures were judged on subject interest only, the aim being to encourage the beginner, as well as the expert amateur photographer, to enter. The result was that really interesting pictures were submitted.

Tension Grows as Flying Squadrons of Pickets Make Spectacular Dashes in Efforts to Close Mills—Number in Walkout in Eastern States Is Placed at 200,000

Other Branches Ordered To Quit Machines Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP).—The United States' greatest textile strike gained rapid momentum, tonight, but apparently failed to reach the goal set by Labor—a 50 per cent tie-up before midnight.

Increasing scenes of violence marked the walkout. Tension grew in many sections as "flying squadrons" of pickets made spectacular dashes in an effort to close mills still operating. An Associated Press tabulation placed the number on strike during the afternoon at 199,300 out of 633,200 normally employed in the three main sections of the industry—cotton, silk and wool.

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the union's strike committee, asserted that the number was "easily 300,000," and declared the strike "has exceeded our expectations."

STAMPED AS FAILURE George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, and Peter von Horn, chairman of the silk code authority, said today's response stamped the walkout as a failure.

Another division of the industry, the silk throwers, numbering 25,000, mostly in Pennsylvania, were ordered out tomorrow.

From Fayetteville, N.C., came reports that police had broken picket lines, and that at the Hopewell plant a company union, heavily armed, had been placed on guard with orders to shoot to kill.

EFFECTIVE IN SOUTH The strike was most effective in the South, with great textile centres completely shut down. New England was less affected, but the industry was idle in two huge centres, Manchester, N.H., and New Bedford, Mass.

Gorman expressed entire satisfaction with developments, and expressed no concern at the situation in New England.

"We knew what the situation was," he said.

MARRIAGE WILL LINK DYNASTIES

Announce Archduke Otto's Engagement to Princess Maria of Italy

VIAREGGIO, Italy, Sept. 4 (AP).—Italy's King and Queen met Austria's erstwhile Empress here today, and decided to link the two dynasties in matrimony. The official announcement, it was understood, would be delayed pending clarification of Otto's position in reference to the restoration of the monarchy in Austria and Hungary.

ROME, Sept. 4 (AP).—The belief that Italy is swinging around to support of Archduke Otto's pretensions to the Austrian throne was strengthened tonight, when his engagement to Princess Maria, of Italy, became known.

It was considered here hardly likely that the Royal family and Premier Benito Mussolini would have consented to the marriage had they not strong faith in the improvement of Otto's present position.

Speculation followed immediately as to whether some definite step to put Otto on the throne at Vienna would come before the official announcement is issued.

Queen Marie to Visit at Balmoral

LONDON, Sept. 4 (CP-Havas).—Queen Marie of Rumania will visit England about September 20, it was announced today. She will be the guest of Their Majesties at Balmoral Castle.

Parents Receive Cryptic Message

SEATTLE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Several hours after Miss Emily Pink, twenty-two-year-old Idaagah bookkeeper, had telephoned home today that she was not coming home, a man called up, the parents reported tonight, and said he had had her moved from the city hospital to another address for the time being.

Miss Pink was taken to the hospital last night, after being rescued from Puget Sound, when she fell from a steamer inbound from Victoria, B.C. Her fiancé, Stuart Kerr, was with her on the boat.

The man who telephoned, the father said, introduced himself as Miss Pink's "boy friend." The girl did not tell her parents this morning about falling into the sound, and they did not learn of it until later.

FOUR ARE HURT IN AUTO SMASH

Three Girls Still in Hospital as Result of Labor Day Accident

Victims of a Labor Day automobile crash at the intersection of Cook and Pembroke streets, three girls are in the Jubilee Hospital, two of them seriously hurt, and a young man is at home recovering from bruises and two automobiles are almost complete wrecks.

The injured are:

Teresa Lee Warner, 1440 Grant Street, fractured pelvis.

Winnifred Oxendale, 1258 Balmoral Road, fractured pelvis.

Patricia Phipps, 1443 Denman Street, bruises and concussion.

James Oxendale, 1258 Balmoral Road, bruises and cuts. He is at home.

Hospital authorities late last night reported the condition of the three girls as "fair."

MEET AT CROSSING

The accident occurred shortly after 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon at the intersection of Cook and Pembroke streets. The cars in collision were driven by George Edward Knight, 2018 Chambers Street, and J. E. Taylor, 1600 Morrison Street. Mr. Knight was driving along Pembroke and Mr. Taylor along Cook and the two cars met at the street intersection. Apparently neither driver was aware of the approach of the other until it was too late to avoid a collision.

When the impact occurred, the occupants of the cars were thrown out, three being catapulted through the roof of one of the automobiles as it was thrown on its side.

Both cars were badly damaged, and one is considered almost beyond repair.

Immediately after the accident, the police ambulance was summoned and the injured parties taken to the Royal Jubilee Hospital for attention.

St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, was filled to capacity yesterday afternoon when the funeral rites were held for the late William Wallace Duncan, chairman of the Saanich School Board, and prominent resident of Saanich municipality, whose death occurred on Friday.

The services were conducted by Rev. Canon A. E. de L. Nunn, assisted by Rev. J. S. A. Bastin. Two hymns were sung, "My God, My Father, While I Stray" and "Thy Way, Not Mine, O Lord," and also the 23rd Psalm.

A profusion of floral tributes was received, testifying to the high esteem in which Mr. Duncan was held by all who knew him.

The remains were laid at rest in Royal Oak Burial Park, the Masonic service being read at the graveside by Thomas Brown, of Henderson Lodge, A.F. & A.M.

Council Will Send Petition On Free Port

MONTEREY, Cal., Sept. 4 (AP).—Impaled on a jagged rock in the pounding surf off Cypress Point, the steam schooner J. B. Stetson was believed on the verge of breaking to pieces tonight.

During the day tugs removed all articles of value from the vessel, which went ashore in a heavy fog, early Monday. She carried no cargo and her crew was taken ashore after efforts to release the ship had failed.

VALUES RELICS OF OLD MOUNDS

NORTH BAY, Ont.—Forty years at his hobby of gathering together old articles has given D. J. Elliott, of this city, the most valuable collection of relics in Northern Ontario.

Knives and coins form the chief part of Mr. Elliott's display. His most treasured knife is a relic of the Mound-builders, who are said to have inhabited this country before the Indians. They are supposed to have lived around Lake Superior, and the hammerhead piece of copper in the shape of a knife, now in Mr. Elliott's possession, was taken from the waters of that lake.

as he planned, railway employees would find a "regularity and security of employment, which, under present conditions, is denied them." He said unification of the systems would not add to the volume of unemployment.

UNSAUND AND UNHEALTHY

"The railway situation in this country is unsound and unhealthy," he declared. "I do not know why we should continue to be sick just because we have heretofore been able to pay the doctor's bills." Fears that under his plan the transportation business of the country would be turned over to a private corporation were groundless.

OPIMUM IS SEIZED BY CUSTOMS MEN

Two Hundred Tins, Valued at Six Thousand Dollars, Found at Vancouver on Ship From Orient

VANCOUVER, Sept. 4 (CP).—Opium valued at $6,000 was seized by Canadian customs officers, on board the Canadian Pacific Steamship liner Empress of Asia, here today.

The opium, contained in 200 one-tael tins, was concealed in the false bottom of a wardrobe cupboard in a third-class stateroom in the after part of the ship.

One-tael tins have seldom been seen here, most of the opium seized being contained in five-tael tins. The authorities believe the drug was intended for either Honolulu or Manila.

It was the first opium seizure here in months. No arrest has been made.

Canadian Outlook Generally Better Rail Head States

E. W. Beatty, K.C., President of Canadian Pacific Railway, Says "Improvement Perceptible in Practically All of Territory Visited"—Spent Holiday Period in Capital City

REASONABLE assurance that conditions generally throughout Canada were better than in 1933, was given by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, on his arrival in Victoria, Sunday morning, to spend the holiday period in the Capital City of British Columbia.

Mr. Beatty, accompanied by W. N. Tilley, K.C.; R. H. McMaster, and R. S. McLaughlin, directors of the company, Hon. Senator Smeaton White, and C. H. Carlisle, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., spent Sunday and part of Monday in the city, leaving by the afternoon boat on Monday for the Mainland to commence the return journey to Montreal. With the party was D. C. Coleman, vice-president of Western lines.

GENERAL OUTLOOK

Concerning the general outlook in Canada, Mr. Beatty stated: "As compared with 1933, an improvement was perceptible in practically all of the territory we visited. This does not apply to certain areas in the Prairie Provinces where the grain crop was ruined by drought, hail and insect pests. In spite of the heavy losses which will fall upon individuals, a considerable crop is being garnered in Western Canada. Much depends on our ability to dispose of the grain grown this year, plus the carry-over from previous crops, at prices yielding a profit to the producer.

"In this respect," the president remarked, "the outlook is encouraging and if we can realize on our wheat crop, and if we can expect reasonably stable conditions in the wheat markets for a few years, there is no reason why we should not enter on a new era of steady progress and development. In other lines of industry in Canada, the story is one of substantial revival.

WORLD CONDITIONS

Reviewing world conditions, Mr. Beatty's statement added: "Since the war, policies of extreme nationalism have prevented the normal exchange of commodities and of money. These policies resulted from the attempt to collect and to pay reparations and war debts, and also from the desire of many nations to turn to economic use machinery and plants built to meet the extraordinary demands of warfare. No single nation can correct the situation by its own effort, but there are signs that the evil of it is becoming generally recognized, and that the nations will be forced to come together.

STIMULATE TRADE

"In the meantime, the British Commonwealth of nations can make a powerful contribution to a final solution of effecting agreements, each with the other, which will stimulate trade between the various members of that far-flung confederation.

"The beneficial results of previous preference policies, and of the specific pacts made at Ottawa in 1932, are very apparent in Canada today, notably in the matter of lumber and hog products. Further progress should be made in that direction, so far as it is consistent with the independent economic life of each of the British nations. Problems of trade and of exchange are inseparable and must be—and will be—associated in the same ultimate world settlement."

With respect to reuniting Pacific liners at Esquimalt in preference to Hongkong, Mr. Beatty reiterated a statement made by D. C. Coleman a few months ago: That the question was being considered in all aspects and that it was the policy of the company to have as much reuniting done in Canadian ports as conditions and cost warranted.

TOURIST TRAVEL UP

Mr. Beatty expressed satisfaction with the tourist travel in Canada during the season just closing. He was confident that the figures would approach near the level of 1930. Company hotels over practically the whole of the system had shown considerable improvement over the preceding year's business. In the mountain hotels and resorts, the increase might be as high as 50 to 60 per cent over 1933.

During their stay in Victoria, President Beatty and Mr. Coleman received a number of prominent business men and made a number of courtesy calls. Sunday was spent quietly and on Monday morning Mr. Beatty's party attended a memorial service at Christ Church Cathedral for the late Grant Hall, senior vice-president of the company.

CHARLES H. VESEY CALLED TO REST

Resident of Victoria for Twenty-One Years Passes Away in Royal Jubilee Hospital

Death claimed, yesterday, at Royal Jubilee Hospital, Charles Henry Vesey, 805 Mary Street, at the age of fifty-eight years, and as a reserve against emergent winter work, including snow removal. There will be no new mileage, no permanent bridges or new buildings, and no permanent surfacing.

Men employed under the plan will work an eight-hour day, at the rate of 40 cents an hour.

Partners wishing to work off a year of their taxes will be included in the scheme, though in this case it is not yet clear if the Province will receive their pay for liquidation of tax arrears, or if the cash presented at the same time. Local labor will be used as far as possible.

Work is to commence immediately in Interior ridings where, after November 1, weather will make further road work impossible through snow. In coast and southerly areas, the work may be continued through the winter.

ALBERTA DELEGATION Introduced by L. A. Hanna, former member for the district but now representing Comox, a six-man delegation from Alberta will be the Minister of Works yesterday.

The delegation said it had no need of bridges, but did want nineteen miles of road surface oiled, on a strip of the Canadian Highway between Whiskey Creek and Alberni. The delegation asked how much was to be spent in the Alberni-Nanaimo riding, but this information was withheld. Classification of the Alberni-Great central route as arterial was also suggested.

The twin settlements of the Alberni Canal sent Mayor C. J. Spratt, Rev. Glen Stevenson, J. H. Warren, E. J. Cronk, D. A. Galliford and Robert Stewart, as their delegation. The group was escorted with the minister for an hour and a half, after having been presented by Mr. Hanna. Mr. Hanna remained behind, to discuss Comox affairs.

PAY TRIBUTE TO OFFICIAL

Memorial Service for Grant Hall Held at Christ Church Cathedral

Attended by E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway; D. C. Coleman, vice-president of Western lines, and upwards of 250 officials, former officials of the company and citizens, a memorial service was held in Christ Church Cathedral here, Monday morning, for the late Grant Hall, M.A., D.C.L., first vice-president of the company.

The service, which was simple but impressive, commenced at 10 o'clock with an organ prelude, "Elegy," by Parry. The service was conducted by Right Rev. C. D. Schofield, Bishop of Columbia, assisted by Very Rev. Cecil S. Quantin, Dean of Columbia, and the cathedral choir.

ORDER OF SERVICE

Following the organ prelude was the reading of Psalm xlii (Domine regit me) and then the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past." The choir sang the Anthem Russian "Cantata," which was followed by the reading of the lessons. The lessons were from Wisdom iii, 1-9, and Rev. vii, 9-17. The closing hymn was "Abide With Me." Prayers were offered by the bishop, and as the congregation left the cathedral, the organist played Chopin's Funeral March.

The only unusual feature of the service was the draping of the lectern with the red and white house flag of the Canadian Pacific.

OFFICIALS REPRESENTED

Captain Hobart Molson, M.C., attended the service as the representative of Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson, Lieutenant-Governor of the province. Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, represented Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Premier of British Columbia, and Mayor David Leeming was present on behalf of the citizens of Victoria.

Service President Beatty at the service were the members of the C.P.R. official party, including D. C. Coleman, vice-president, Western lines; Hon. Senator Smeaton White, R. H. McMaster, R. S. McLaughlin and W. Tilley, K.C., directors; C. H. Carlisle, president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company; H. P. Matthews, general manager of C.P.R. hotels, Montreal; A. E. Robinson, assistant general manager, Western hotels, Winnipeg; J. K. Hodges, manager of the Empress Hotel; J. Harry Smith, director of C.P.R. publicity, Montreal; A. L. McGrover, Kenneth Knowles and Harry Joyce, secretaries.

Other Planets Are Discussed

Overcast skies prevented any outdoor observing, but otherwise the programme of the Summer Study Club of the Astronomical Society was carried out on Monday evening, when G. Brown Cave, a brilliant mathematics student at the University of British Columbia, and an enthusiastic amateur astronomer, spoke on planets other than the earth.

The subject was most ably dealt with, the speaker, with the assistance of excellently-selected lantern slides, showing the comparative actual sizes, distances and masses of the planets, their movements, their physical appearance and conditions, and a great amount of other information. Not the least interesting part of the lecture was the description of how this data had been obtained and the means used by astronomers to determine these various features.

As usual, a number of persons joined in the discussion following the lecture. H. Boyd Brydon, president of the society, called attention to the fact that the Summer Study Club series will come to an end next Monday night, with the lecture by Charles Hartley, M.A., on "Modern

Mr. Smith is survived by his widow and one daughter, at home, 1615 Pinewood Street.

The funeral, which will be held under the auspices of Confederation Lodge, No. 116, A.F. and A.M., will take place this afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at McCall Bros. Funeral Home. Interment will be made in Colwood Burial Park.

Former Victorian Is Called to Rest

Word was received here, yesterday, of the death, in Vancouver, of Mrs. Emma Snider, formerly of Victoria, and a native daughter of this city. The death occurred on Sunday, and the funeral will be held this morning, in Vancouver, at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Snider was eighty years of age. She was a member of a pioneer family of this province. Her husband, who predeceased her, was well known as a contractor here.

be unfair, as I am entirely ignorant of the sentiment in Victoria. It is your business what you do with the inheritance that is yours. Perhaps you are content with your progress, but I cannot refrain from remarking that while nature has given you so much, man does not appear to have exerted himself unduly to take advantage of the opportunities that are here for the development of an all year round land of recreation. I hope that you will forgive a stranger for voicing such sentiments. I cannot help it, for I have been associated all my life with recreational opportunities, and find that here in Victoria and on Vancouver Island you have them in abundance."

HIGHLY QUALIFIED Mr. Eslick is probably more qualified to discuss recreational possibilities than any other man alive. Trained as an architect and engineer in England, his birthplace, he qualified as a F.R.I.B.A., M.I.C.E. and P.I.A.S., and devoted his abilities to the construction of exhibitions, theatres and amusement centres.

Designer of the first scenic railways ever constructed in Europe, he engaged in his profession all over Europe, and at one time was engaged in constructing the amusement sections of three separate exhibitions, at London, Paris and Vienna. This task he regards as one of the most exacting of his career.

In 1911 he was selected by the Government of Bombay to take charge of the building of the Royal Durbar Exhibition at Bombay, erected to welcome the King and Queen, and had charge of the staging of the greatest display of modern times. The Durbar ceremonies at Delhi. He was present, and within

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER
Wake Up Your Liver Bile... Without Calomel, And Feel Like a Million Dollars.
Nothing can put your system off to better more quickly than your liver. All it has to do is stop pointing its daily two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels—and life certainly gets grey. That sluggish flow of bile slows up digestion and assimilation and makes you "feel punk". Your stomach acts up—gas, bloating, sourness, pain. Your breath is bad and the taste in your mouth is nasty. Your head aches. All this is blotchy. All, of course, because your system is full of poisons.
New liver movers like salts, oil, mineral water, roughage, laxative candy or chewing gum are not good enough to correct this condition. You're liver and you must wake up your liver bile to be happy and healthy. You save upset you because they're purely vegetable, gentle and safe; but how they do change your new life!
"Avoid calomel (mercury). The thing for you is a box of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They save upset you because they're purely vegetable, gentle and safe; but how they do change your new life!"
Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name—and get them! Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. 50c. at all drug stores.

BOTH SKIPPERS WELL EQUIPPED
Yachts Expected to Provide Series of Thrilling Races for Trophy
By TOM MORRAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEWPORT, R.I., Sept. 4 (AP).—It would be difficult to find two better-equipped skippers, or two keener-minded yachting strategists, than the rivals who will sail the contending sloops in this year's America's Cup races—Thomas O'Leary Murdoch Sopwith for England, and Harold Stirling Vanderbilt for the United States.
They will match their craft, their crews and their sailing wits, starting September 15, in a best-four-out-of-seven series of races, which most observers expect to develop the most thrilling competition in the history of the famous trophy. Granting there is little to choose in the speed between Sopwith's Endeavour or Vanderbilt's Rainbow, the outcome seems likely to hinge on the tactics of the men at the helm.
Vanderbilt, born to great wealth and social position fifty years ago, began sailing at the age of eight. His greatest triumph was his successful defence of the America's Cup four years ago, when he called Enterprise to victory over the late Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth and last Shamrock.
Before he turned to yacht racing, Sopwith gained fame in the air and at the wheel of racing motorboats. Many North Americans remember him as a contender in the historic flight around Boston Light, back in 1911.

NEW SALVATION ARMY GENERAL

The election of Commander Evangeline Booth, fourth daughter of the Founder, and sister of the late General Bramwell Booth, and commanding officer in the United States, to succeed General Edward J. Higgins, is one of the major events of this year's religious history. The advancement of a woman to its highest office is in harmony with the principles of the Army, which makes no differentiation in its officer because of sex. The restoration of leadership to a member of the Booth family, who it is taking place by the free choice of the High Council and not by the choice of the preceding leader, will please the Army constituency and commend itself to the religious world at large. In his daughter are found, as in no other of his talented children, the initiative, spiritual intensity, social passion and dominating urge that marked William Booth. The High Council was moved no doubt, not with desire to honor the name or even to remove any strain resulting from the last election, but to utilize for the larger sphere the distinctive family traits that have made Miss Booth so successful in her thirty years of service in the United States.

Next to her father, none of the Army's leaders has captured the imagination of the membership as has the General-elect. Before she entered her teens she assisted in children's meetings in the schoolroom of her home. As a young woman she never quailed before the mobs of Eastbourne and Torquay. With magnetic appeal she gathered notorious characters into the Gospel net. In abounding tenderness she became the friend of the under-privileged and sister of the outcast, so that they called her the "patron saint of the slums." Her social passion developed social service in the United States to such an extent that the organization was given the appellation of "The army of the helping hand." Always the prisoner's friend, the Army has been given, by the American Government, special opportunities of aiding the inmates of jails. For this social service Commander Booth was awarded, by President Wilson's Government, the Distinguished Service Medal, the honorary degree of Master of Arts by Tufts College, the Fairfax Gold Medal, the Vasa Gold Medal by the Swedish Government, and the Gold Medal of the National Institute of Social Science.

The General-elect is a brilliant personality. Possessing her father's power over an audience, the vibrant voice and flashing eye, she has an added feminine appeal which holds her hearers spellbound and mightily moves them. A musician of ability, she is a harpist and a composer of many of the Army's most popular religious songs. Her administrative gift is shown in her singular success in the American Republic, and as she moves from the direction of 3,500 officers to the control of 20,000 her power will be greatly enlarged. Without doubt, the evangelism and social spirit that characterizes this religious body will be stimulated under the new regime.

A number of visits to this city have made Miss Booth pleasantly known here. During her six years as territorial commander for Canada she spoke here on several occasions, notably in 1898 in the former Presbyterian Church on Pandora Avenue, where her Klondike band about her on the platform. She touched this port, though without landing, on her way home from Japan in 1928. Personal contact at such times has deepened the impression of an exceptionally rich, strong and attractive personality, a womanly woman with a Christly temper and a world view. The Salvation Army will be well led during the next two years. The new General was born on Christmas Day, 1866, and is nearly sixty-eight years old, and must retire at seventy.

THE SHOEMAKER AND HIS LAST

Science has no doubt been successful in discrediting some opinions formerly held on the basis of tradition and authority. Mere authority does not now seriously challenge the supremacy of science when science is at work upon its own appointed field. The result of this has been that latterly a good many people have been ready to give credence to whatever bears the stamp of scientific approval. A certain childlike faith and confidence in science, and even in what merely professes to be scientific, seems to be the attitude of a large class of people who have not the time or the capacity to become investigators on their own. The devoted layman in the age of faith listens in a receptive and unquestioning spirit to the voice of religious authority. Latterly it has been the deliverances of the man of science that are greeted with an uncritical credulity. There has been a marked tendency to treat him as the only really trustworthy authority on any subject.

This reputation for omniscience enjoyed by science has been due to its astonishing achievements of a practical character which are close to our personal interests. On the theoretical side, however, this same reputation has been built up in certain fields of knowledge somewhat remote from those interests. The telephone, the automobile, the airplane are matters of practical interest to everyone. On the other hand, the ordinary layman cares little or nothing about protons or electrons, or Weber's law, or the precise distance of this or that star. These are matters which, whatever the exact truth may be, most people can, and do, treat with calm indifference.

Experience has shown, however, that when the scientist asks the layman to accept some unwelcome hypothesis-like evolution, or some theory of an unpleasant character in the realm of psycho-analysis, the layman is apt to balk. Moreover, when new theories are invented and discarded at a rapid rate, the prestige of the scientist is likely to suffer, and the layman can hardly be blamed if he begins to feel that he has perhaps been too easy and credulous. It may be altogether to the credit of the scientist that he is willing to change his mind and try to patch up his theories so as to bring them up to date, but the layman does not always understand or appreciate this. He wants his scientific authorities to be unimpeachable. If he should hear any whisper to the contrary he will become sceptical. This is exactly what has occurred. The layman's attitude is changing. He suspects that he cannot hope to get help from the scientist that will enable him to understand all, or indeed very many, of the true realities of life. The scientist taught the layman to adopt a critical attitude towards religious authority. The layman learned his lesson well, and now begins to express his doubts as to the infallibility of science and its claim to be heard outside of its own restricted sphere.

Some scientists are also philosophers, but scientific acumen and the scientific method do not necessarily confer philosophic insight, or the capacity to evaluate religious truth, or the ability to settle questions of ethics or even art. The scientific method has its place and function in bringing man into contact with reality, but there are other methods. The scientist himself has adopted a less pontifical attitude than formerly. He now seems willing to admit that art may be something more than a mere pastime, and that religious experience, so far from being mere illusion, may bring us into direct and vital contact with reality. The scientist is learning the soundness of the maxim that the shoemaker should stick to his last.

AUSTRALIA TO VOTE

The issues in the present Australian general election, to be held on September 15, are fundamentally the same as they were three years ago. Then the people were told by the Labor Party that their salvation lay in debt repudiation, in inflation and in political control of the banks. The Labor Party was defeated, and since then the United Australia Party, supported by the Country Party, has been in power. Now again the Labor Party is making nationalization of the banks and "socialization of credit" the chief plank in its platform. Premier Lyons says that what the Labor Party really wants is not nationalization but politicalization of banking to prepare the way for "crazy schemes of note inflation."

The finances of Australia have been greatly improved under its present administration, and it is mainly upon the basis of what has been done in this respect that Premier Lyons hopes to be returned to power. His promises for the future relate to relief of unemployment by public works, including forestry schemes, unification of railway gauges and country water storage. Another scheme the Premier hopes to carry out is a loan for the relief of rural debtors.

In the campaign the Labor Party suffers from the disadvantage of divided counsels. The main body follows Mr. Scullin, a former Prime Minister. The extremists of the party, however, have thrown in their lot with Mr. Lang, and this end of Labor is particularly strong in New South Wales. At the last election, Labor sustained what Mr. Scullin called a "staggering blow." With the issues of the campaign practically the same as last time, the result will rest upon whatever measure of confidence the people have in the financial and economic success that has attended the efforts of the party in power.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

The only freedom which deserves the name is that of pursuing one's own good in one's own way, so long as we do not attempt to deprive others of theirs, or impede their efforts to obtain them.—Mill (on Liberty).

Strange things are happening in the world today, and we should not be surprised if startling things were to happen in the world tomorrow or in the not very distant future. The French revolutionists, in the name of Liberty, Equality and Fraternity, cut off the heads of their king and queen and of the ancient nobles, and completed their work by cutting off their own heads; but they did not achieve complete Liberty, Equality and Fraternity. Extreme measures in one case were followed by extreme measures in another case. The old order which had been temporarily upset was succeeded by a new order more arbitrary than its predecessor. The Bonapartes had their day and passed. There was another revolution after the disaster of Sedan, and a republic succeeded a monarchy.

If the people of France today are living in the enjoyment of complete Liberty, Equality and Fraternity, they should be blessed among the people of most nations, for the bounds of freedom in other parts of Europe and some parts of the world have not been made wider yet. When the Pilgrim Fathers of England embarked upon a frail craft not much greater in tonnage than a British Columbia Indian war canoe and braved the storms of the Atlantic Ocean, they hoped to establish on a new continent complete personal liberty and absolute religious freedom; but the Pilgrim Fathers of America proved to be quite as intolerant in some respects as their English oppressors were in other respects. In the American colony persecution in the name of the reformed religion was quite as common as persecution in the name of the established religion.

It was a long time before there was Liberty, Equality and Fraternity in the American colonies, and we doubt whether there is complete Liberty, Equality and Fraternity in the United States. Some of the Fathers of the Republic were slave owners and slave drivers. We believe it was Patrick Henry who dramatically as well as politically cried, "Give me liberty or give me death!" We know it was Lincoln the great liberator who declared in his celebrated Gettysburg speech that a war had been waged in order that freedom should not perish from the face of the earth.

The ideal state is that in which any man will be at liberty to do the thing he will. That means liberty within the law, of course, for defiance of provisions of the law is the negation of liberty. In that sense are the people of the United States enjoying the blessings of freedom? In the United States and in Canada, too, we have heard words of scorn poured upon the heads of the dictators of Europe and upon the heads of people who meekly submit to such dictatorships. Is it not possible that there may be tyrannical majorities as well as tyrannical individuals. Is it not even possible that there may be tyrannical minorities? We realize that the subject is a delicate one, and should be discussed without prejudice. In these days of depression in business and in industry there is a popular demand for work and wages. We have even heard demands for wages without work; but there are few persons so poor in spirit as to cry for wages without work. When there are so many willing workers idle, is it a time to place obstacles before any who are willing and eager to work? At a time when the President of the United States is undertaking an experiment which may endanger his future as a public man in the hope of promoting prosperity and providing work and wages, is he a patriotic citizen who declares that no man should engage in work except under conditions thatigan or the organization behind him may dictate?

It is as true today as it was on the day it was said that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. Intolerance is a vice which the Pilgrim Fathers did not leave behind them in Europe. Probably one of the reasons why Great Britain is the most peaceably inclined and the most prosperous nation in the world today is that her people are the most tolerant of all people. The Briton may say the thing he will and do the thing he will if the thing can be done and the thing said without violent prejudice to the interests of his neighbors. If that principle prevailed in the United States the new deal or plan of the President would not be prejudiced by so many clashes between interests and menaces to law, peace and good order by strikes and disturbances. Appeals to reason are usually more successful than resorts to force if the people are worthy of an inheritance of freedom.

"You're not very quick at reckoning change, my lad," said the customer as the newsboy counted out fourpence.

"Sorry, sir, I'm rather out of practice," said the lad. "You see, sir, most folks tell me to keep the change."

C.R.C. STAR IS VISITOR IN CITY

Frank Deaville, of Comedy Team, Spending Short Vacation in Victoria

Frank Deaville, a native son of Victoria, who has recently become one of the Canadian Radio Commission's featured artists, is spending a brief vacation here with his wife and two children. Mr. Deaville, with Arthur McGregor, of Vancouver, has been starred in "Woodhouse and Hawkins in Nitwit Court," a popular Calgary presentation.

According to Mr. Deaville, the Canadian Radio Commission has been more and more popular with listeners in the Pacific centres within the last few months.

In their presentation, which is released every Friday at 8:15 o'clock, Mr. Deaville and Mr. McGregor set the local in an apartment house. The resources of the radio are used to their advantage.

An interesting sidelight is the fact that since their inaugural Canadian Radio Commission broadcast, last December, some thirty-five voices have been heard, all of which the two boys take themselves. The pair utilizes some twelve voices regularly.

While they are vacationing on the Coast, the broadcast emanates from Vancouver, through C.R.C.

STRANDED TUG
AFLOAT AGAINAlgie, Assisted by Burrard Chief, On Her Way to Vancouver

Aground on Seal Rocks, opposite the Little Arctic, at Cordova Bay, the Vancouver tugboat Algie, with a boom of logs in tow from Port Angeles to Vancouver, was held up from Sunday afternoon until 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when, with the assistance of the Ss. Burrard Chief, of the Island Tug & Barge Company, she was towed out to the ship channel and started on her way.

Moving out from the scene of the grounding, an interesting picture was presented, the Burrard Chief towing the Algie, which was ahead of the boom of logs, the marine parade ending with an airplane behind the tug. Captain F. L. Clarke, representing the underwriters, had flown over from Vancouver for the purpose of inspecting and making a report on the position of the Algie. The plane was towed behind the logs until everything had been made ready to proceed, when it took to the air.

GOOD SPORT
AT REGATTALarge Gathering of Yachtsmen at Cowichan Bay for Sailing Races

Boats from Northwest yacht clubs had plenty of sport at Cowichan Bay over the week-end. Royal Victoria Yacht Club entries were confined to star and dinghy class craft. Mintaka, W. T. M. Barrett, taking first place in the former event; and Dabchick, skippered by Tom Beeching, leading in the latter race.

The race for motor boats, which started at Cadboro Bay Saturday afternoon, was won by A. W. Coupland, with Alcopa. The time for the finish of the motor craft at Cowichan Bay was set for 7 o'clock. Alcopa finished at 7:16:50. The second boat was Vouloir, Dr. Thomas Mercer, which timed in at 7:17:20; while Vagrant, Walter Adams, finished third, the time of arrival being 7:41 o'clock. The race was for possession of the Irvine Cup and the seventh race of the series for the Burrard Cup.

LADY VAN WON

In the main sailing races of the regatta, which was under the auspices of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, this year, the R Class event was won by Lady Van, of Vancouver, which beat Sir Tom, of Seattle, by a small margin. Lady Van finished at 2:06:06 o'clock, and Sir Tom at 2:07:15 o'clock. H. E. Wyllis sailed the Vancouver boat, and Arthur Ayres, of Seattle, the craft.

The Northwest Perpetual Challenge Trophy for cruising sloops was won by Circle, Ray Cooke, Seattle, with Angelica, C. W. Stimson, Seattle, finishing second. The Lip-ton Cup for schooners, yaws and ketches was annexed by Minerva, H. B. Wallace, Vancouver; Mahera, Roy Corbett, Seattle, was second; and Melmar, Harold Jones, Vancouver, was third.

The special class for sloops was won by Blowna, Cedric Gyles, Vancouver; with Spirit, Harold Jones, Vancouver, second; and Thurenga, F. Stewart, Vancouver, in third place. Second in the star event was Boykin, R. F. Blandy, Victoria; while Klismet, Herbert Gann, Victoria; and Onoway, Peter Hinks, Victoria, took second and third places, respectively, in the dinghy class.

PRIZES PRESENTED

Prizes were presented aboard the Vencador, Commodore E. W. Hamber's yacht, by Mrs. Hubert Wallace. On Saturday night, a dance was held at Cowichan Bay Inn.

Sueja III, with Captain James Griffiths, Seattle, aboard, was present at the regatta, while the boats from Victoria included Quercus, Dr. W. J. Gibson; Thora, Dr. B. E. Nickells; Dorothy, Major W. H. Langley; Emmeline, F. B. Seymour; Vagrant, W. Adams; Miko, Col. E. R. Tooley; Spartan III, Col. R. B. Andros; Trojan, Col. Richard Angus; Quenca, Sir Frank Barnard; and Mavis, M. A. W. Bridgeman.

Although the regatta was handled by the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, Major W. Garrard, commodore of Cowichan Bay Yacht Club, and M. C. Koechlin, secretary of the organization, had much to do with the success of the gathering, making all the necessary preparations.

NARROW ESCAPE
IN SMALL BOATDinghy Upset in Stiff Squall While Sailing on Labor Day

Upsetting the dinghy in which they were enjoying a sail, on the afternoon of Labor Day, a sudden squall gave Alan Chambers, Liberal candidate in the Federal riding of Nanaimo, and two women companions accompanying him, an experience, which, while thrilling enough while it lasted, fortunately resulted in nothing more serious than a prolonged cold bath.

Clinging to the wave-washed craft for about fifteen minutes, Mr. Chambers and his companions were rescued by Jack Rithet and Thomas Golly, and were taken aboard the former's motor yacht, on which he and Mr. Golly were cruising at the time.

The sailing party had left Poul Bay shortly after noon, and all had gone well until the boat was in the vicinity of Jimmy Chicken Island, when a squall hit her, forcing Mr. Chambers to choose between running ashore or taking the full force of the squall. Choosing the latter evil, the boat was capsized.

Swimming for shore was considered, but the strong current running at the time quickly negated that idea, and all hands clung to the drifting boat until Mr. Rithet, whose attention was called to the yachting party's predicament by a fisherman, picked them up.

Horse Show Dates
Changed; Record
Of 1933 ExceededProgramme Will Be Held Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday During Fair Week—Entries This Year Greater Than Last

ALTHOUGH last year was a record one for horse show entries, this year the entries are even greater. W. H. Mearns, secretary of the British Columbia Agricultural Association, stated, when announcing that the dates for the horse show during fair week had been changed.

The shows will be held at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Previously it was intended to start the programme on the Wednesday, but a new attraction has been arranged for Saturday, which would conflict with the Horse Show.

THE COMMITTEE

A splendid programme of events has been arranged by the committee, comprising J. E. Matthews, D. B. Carley, Mrs. D. C. Gillespie, Mrs. H. Jutson, Fisher, Dr. Irene Bastow Hudson, Commander C. H. R. Silingsby and S. P. Birley.

Up to yesterday afternoon a total of 238 entries had been filed, but there were still some more among the mail entries that had to be sorted and listed, so that last year's record is expected to be exceeded by more than the eight, which is the number by which last year's list is at present surpassed.

Some fine heavy horse entries have been received, as well as a good number of six-horse teams. A feature of this section will be a particularly fine mare that is being brought with a strong entry from Ellensburg, Wash., by Luther Harrel. Mr. Harrel has been exhibiting at the Vancouver Fair, and a Belgian mare, weighing 2,380 pounds, that is included in his entries, has created widespread interest.

ENTRY LIST

Those exhibiting in the Horse Show are as follows: Miss Betty Bechtel; H. Van der Vliet; Bell & Munro, of Carstairs, Alta.; Chum Carley, D. B. Carley, forty-one entries; Miss M. Ford, G. I. Edgewood, J. G. Hazelwood; Miss S. Herchner,

Up-Island Couple to Live Here

St. John's Church, Duncan, was the scene of a pretty wedding, on Monday afternoon, when Rev. Arthur Blachlager united in marriage Gladys Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Lomas, of Lake Cowichan, and Mr. Arthur Charles Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Howe, of Chemainus. The church was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride. Mrs. F. G. Christmas was the organist.

Miss Lomas was given away by her father, and made a lovely bride in a gown of white crepe satin, close fitting to the knees, flaring to the floor, and ending in a small train. The waist was caught in by a narrow satin belt ornamented with deep satin cuffs. From the shoulder to the waist at the back, lace was used effectively set off by tiny pearls. The V-shaped neck was held together by a single large pearl.

worn brooch-wise. Her veil of beautifully embroidered silk net was worn cap-like with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a shower bouquet of pale pink carnations, bridal roses, swansons and white heather.

PRETTY ATTENDANT

The matron of honor, Mrs. P. N. Sunderland, sister of the bride, was lovely in a gown of organza in the softest shade of green, close fitting to the knees and frilled to floor-length, and had a frilled cape and a large brimmed organdie hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of baby royal dahlias and roses. Miss Isa McClaunie, of Paikland, B.C., who was bridesmaid, was charming in a daffodil yellow net frilled floor length frock with a frilled jacket and a yellow organza hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and dahlias.

RECEPTION HELD

A reception was held at the home of the bride's cousin, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert St. George Gray, Alington Road. Mrs. Lomas, mother of the bride, wearing a short brown crepe ensemble with touches of burnt orange and corsage of yellow roses and swansons, was assisted in receiving the guests by the groom's mother, who wore a becoming frock of mauve flat crepe and a corsage bouquet of Talsman roses and purple violets. The tea table, covered with a beautiful hand-drawn Mexican cloth, was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, and decorated with mauve sweet peas. Mrs. H. M. Prevost, of Duncan, and Mrs. Alex Dunne, of Vancouver, poured tea.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Howe, of Great Central Lake; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Dunne and Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Smithson, of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Catterall, Miss Laura Catterall, Mr. T. Catterall, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Gillingham, Mr. Douglas Gillingham, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Lomas and Mrs. Connie Lomas, of Victoria, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Sutton, of Shawinigan Lake.

After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Howe will make their home in Victoria. Mrs. Howe had chosen for her travelling costume a becoming suit of Burmese blue saphy wool, an attractive blue and white hat and white accessories.

Tea Cosy Revival Brings to Light Lovely Designs

Seven hundred and fifty exquisite tea cosies were entered in the unique contest sponsored by the Ceylon Tea Bureau at the Canadian National Exhibition this year. The sensible habit of keeping the tea pot warm during the delightful hour of comfort and ease has brought about a great revival of the tea cosy in over three hundred cases, the Pettit point and needlepoint and exquisitely fine quilting on taffeta were used on many other cosies. Some of the knitted ones were the hoop skirts of a seventeenth century maiden, others the voluminous skirts of a girl from the Zuyder Zee. One cosy that attracted much attention was made of felt, in the shape of a little white cottage, with a deep pitched roof. Roses, hollyhock and delphinium bloomed around the white and the door looked as if it were about to open to the visitor with a cheery welcome and a "spot of tea."

Hand painted sweet peas on white taffeta made a pretty and elaborate cosy and many of the women visitors at the booth exclaimed at the practicality of the hooked and ragged rug effect cosies. There was one fine entry made of mauve and white rags and the handle a decorative group of flowers of mauve and green felt. Ruffia was also splendidly adapted to show the handicraft of Canadian women.

H.R.H. Prince George and His Fiancee

World-wide interest has been aroused by the official announcement from Buckingham Palace that Prince George (1), fourth son of the King and Queen, is to marry Princess Marina (2), third daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece. The Princess has the peculiar beauty of her Russian mother, Grand Duchess Vladimirna. The betrothal is the climax of a romance which began five years ago.

Georgie came back with a companion, a stout little cover for the hot water pot that every gracious hostess uses for the guest who takes "weak tea." No one expected that the modern woman who drives a car, swings a golf club and spends her early life in business, would ever find time to learn the artistry and handicraft shown by every cosy entered in the contest. The youthful winner of the first prize, Mrs. Mabel Potter Phare, made a most beautiful thing of robin's egg blue crepe fallie and on each side, an intricate dragon of reddish bronze hand-tooled leather was inlaid. "Inlaid" may sound strange, but the outline of the dragon was stitched to give a quilted effect. And the cosy is lifted by a robin's egg blue shell ring. The whole cosy was so useful and so beautiful that it brought a new standard in needlecraft.

Huge Crowd At Wedding In Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Sept. 4.—In the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends from Nanaimo and different parts of the Island and Mainland, the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. W. P. Bunt, at 8 p.m., Monday, in St. Andrew's United Church, when Georgina Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marsh, of Nanaimo, one of the oldest pioneer families of this district, became the bride of Mr. Le Roy Heather, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Heather, of Vancouver. The altar of the church was decorated with asters and fern. Baskets of the same flowers in harmonizing tones, and white satin ribbon streamers marked the place where the pair marked their vows.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an exquisite gown of dull white satin in fitted lines. A sheer yoke of silk Venetian lace, large puffed elbow sleeves with a light-fitting pointed cuff were features of the bodice, while curved and a belt of white lace and accessories, and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and Gypsophylla. Miss Jennie Deeming wore an attractive gown of turquoise blue georgette, with cape and sleeves, a full skirt and horizontal frills attached to the centre back. She also wore a white picture hat and gloves and carried pale pink carnations. Mr. Ralph Thompson, of Vancouver, was best man. Mr. Ernest Chester, of Seattle, sang "Because" during the signing of the register. Mr. A. Dunsmore provided the nuptial music as the bride entered and left the church.

RECEPTION HELD

Following the ceremony a reception took place in the Harwood Community Hall, where supper was served to 100 guests. Mrs. Marsh, mother of the bride, gowning in brown flat crepe, hat and shoes and a fur neckpiece to match, and Mrs. Heather, mother of the groom, wearing a smart creation of periwinkle blue, received the guests. The bride and groom received congratulations beneath a floral bell suspended from an arch of greenery and autumn flowers. Mr. William Thorpe was toastmaster.

The young couple, who were married on the birthday of the bride's great-grandmother, who is celebrating her eighty-ninth birthday in Scotland today, left amid a shower of good wishes for Victoria, en route to their home in Vancouver.

Describing Waddington Expedition

Those who have heard her speak on previous occasions will welcome the news that Mrs. Don Munday, one of Canada's most intrepid mountaineers, is to give an illustrated public address here on Thursday, October 11. Under the patronage of Mrs. Walter Nichol and sponsored by the Local Council of Women, the lecture should prove most fascinating, as it will be a graphic account of the attempt made this year by the Munday, Frank Hall, Jr., of Boston, and the Swiss guide to scale Mount Waddington, which, up to the present, has withstood all assaults. "I am bitterly disappointed that we could not make the main peak, although I'm quite satisfied it cannot be done," Mrs. Munday wrote after her return to Vancouver a few days ago. "It really is a fabulously difficult affair, with its impossible cliffs decorated with huge and magnificent ice plumes. They are a grand sight. We have seen the lower now on all sides, and there is 700 feet of impossible climbing. The lower is only about sixty feet higher than the northwest peak, which we climbed. We did it from a partly new route, which was much better than the old 1928 route. We left our climbing camp about 3:30 in the morning, and returned at about 10 at night. Some movies were taken, and there is a possibility that these may be shown with the lecture."

News of B.C. Mining

DUST PLANT IS NEW INDUSTRY

Trail Smelters Enlarging Operations to Take Care of Increased Demand

Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. of Canada, Ltd., has entered into a new field with erection of a plant at Trail to manufacture of zinc dust, hitherto imported in large quantities for use in various industries, including gold mining, paper manufacturing and the dyeing and chemical industries.

Several months ago the Industrial Department of the Vancouver Board of Trade furnished information to the company showing imports of zinc dust into British Columbia which in the fiscal year 1934 amounted to 636,000 pounds worth $27,000.

The company subsequently built a plant at Trail which is turning out zinc dust satisfactorily and is now proceeding with enlargements to this plant to take care of Canada's consumption, according to H. B. Fuller, chief accountant at Trail.

The possibilities of this new phase of Consolidated's operations are indicated by the fact that Canada's total imports of zinc dust in 1934 amounted to 1,044,800 pounds, valued at $61,633. This was more than double the amount imported in 1933, totaling 432,400 pounds, valued at $30,128. In 1932, 300,620 pounds were imported, valued at $40,623, and in 1931, 403,001 pounds, valued at $28,788.

Zinc dust is largely consumed as a participant of gold in the cyanide process of recovery, also in paper manufacturing plants, and the dyeing and chemical industries.

Consumption of zinc dust in Canada's gold treatment plants in 1934 approximated 550,000 pounds and present monthly consumption is about 48,000 pounds.

Another construction programme underway at present consists of enlargement of the storage building at the Warfield fertilizer plant. This addition is the second in two years and is larger than that constructed last year. The new section is 100 feet by 90 feet and will increase storage capacity by about 15,000 tons, bringing total capacity to 80,000 tons.

B.R.X. GOLD ADDS TO DIRECTORATE

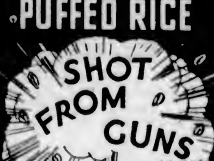

Re-electing former directors, shareholders of B. R. X. Gold Mines, Ltd., at the annual meeting, added Henry D. Tudor and Hugh H. Reid to the directorate.

Mr. Tudor, prominent corporation lawyer, of Boston, has become one of the largest individual shareholders and has been instrumental in directing a considerable amount of Eastern United States capital to the development of this Bridge River property. With S. R. Smith, managing director and Ernest Shepherd, mine superintendent, he left Vancouver Saturday to visit the mine.

Little Bedtime Stories

Farmer Brown's Boy Gives Up

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Fee, fi, fo, fum, fiddle, dee—
A redwing up in a tulip tree!
The whole day long
He sang this song:
Fee, fi, fo, fum, fiddle, dee!

As he said this, Farmer Brown's Boy pointed his gun straight up at Mr. Redwing, who was sitting on the very topmost twig of a tall tree singing for joy, because over in their cradle in the burruses on the edge of the Emiling Pool he had four little babies. For just a minute Farmer Brown's Boy looked along the barrel of his dreadful gun and then, why, he put the gun down again.

"We'll go home and put the gun away."

"I could shoot you just as easy as can be, Mr. Redwing, but I guess I don't want to," said he. "I'd miss that beautiful song of yours, and I wouldn't do me a bit of good just to know that I could hit you, because I know it anyway. All I want is to get that fox who stole my pet chicken, but it looks as if I'll have to keep right on wanting. I've hunted the Green Meadows all over and I've hunted the Green Meadows all through, but no Mr. Fox. I've found the house where he used to live, but he wasn't at home when I called, and he hasn't been there since, for every day I have been to see."

Fee, fi, fo, fum, fiddle, dee!
sang Mr. Redwing.

Farmer Brown's Boy grinned until all the freckles on his face seemed to run into one big freckle. "What do you know about it?" he asked.

Fee, fi, fo, fum, fiddle, dee!
sang Mr. Redwing, just as he had before.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "I believe you could tell me a whole lot, if you only would," said he. "Has Mr. Fox left the Green Meadows for good?"

Fee, fi, fo, fum, fiddle, dee!
was all that Mr. Redwing had to say.

Farmer Brown's Boy and his dreadful gun that as soon as he appeared they straightway hid. The only reason that Mr. Redwing hadn't flown away as soon as he saw Farmer Brown's Boy was because his heart was so full of happiness that he couldn't believe that any one could possibly want to hurt him.

Presently Farmer Brown's Boy whistled to Bowser the Hound, who was running about pretending that he was trying his very hardest to find the tracks of Reddy Fox. "Well, old fellow, can't you find that fox?" asked Farmer Brown's Boy.

Bowser the Hound looked up in his master's face and wagged his tail. Then he looked off across the Green Meadows toward the far-away Old Pasture on the edge of the mountain. "Bow, wow, wow!" said he.

Farmer Brown's Boy looked over there, too, and a sudden thought came to him. He reached down and patted Bowser's head. "I believe you're right, old fellow," said he.

SHEEP CREEK TO BUILD NEW MILL

Good Ore Shot Opened on Seventh Level to Be Developed by Shaft

Construction of a 150-ton mill at Sheep Creek Gold Mines, Ltd., property in the Sheep Creek area south of Nelson, B.C., has been approved by directors, following a report by Henry E. Doelle, mine superintendent.

On its Queen Mine property Sheep Creek Gold has opened 300 feet of ore shoots averaging more than drift width and of a grade which is expected to make a mill feed of at least $18 to $20 a ton in gold, at today's price of gold.

A shaft will be made on the foundations for the mill without delay to take advantage of favorable weather. The exact type of mill will be determined by tests now under way at the General Engineering Company at Salt Lake City, where samples of ore have been sent.

WAIT FOR POWER

When a hook-up with the power-line of the West Kootenay Company has been completed in about a month's time, the crew will proceed with the sinking of a two- and one-half compartment shaft to open a new deep level 150 feet below the No. 7 level east section, where drifting has developed the wider ore bodies previously referred to.

In the meantime a raise from No. 7 level to the surface, a distance of 400 feet, is being driven. This will be the upper section of the main working shaft and through it will be conveyed ore to the new mill, which will be located close to the shaft.

The new low level it is believed that a thirty to forty foot crosscut from the bottom of the shaft will not only pick up the ore body opened recently on the No. 7 level, but will give access to the downward extension of other ore shoots stopped out by former operators of the Queen Mine from the seventh level upward.

B.C. NICKEL TUNNELS ARE MAKING HEADWAY

B.C. Nickel Mines, Ltd., has reported on progress to August 26 as follows:

No. 1 tunnel advanced 108.5 feet to 3,602.5 feet, with face in pyroxenite. Progress delayed somewhat by bad breaking ground.

No. 2 tunnel advanced 69.3 feet to 1,448 feet, with face in pyroxenite all wet.

Water in both dams low with slight delay due to temporary water shortage which will not be corrected until heavy rains come. Additional power unit which will double power supply from same amount of water nearly completed; 141 men on payroll.

Diamond drilling and magnetometer survey to explore ore bodies continues.

BARNEY ROSS 6 TO 5 FAVORITE TO WHIP McLARNIN

Kenny Lawson Takes City Golf Title by Wide Margin, 9 and 8

Eighteen-Year-Old Shotmaker Defeats Harold Pretty After Brilliant Exhibition at Colwood —G. E. Davies Wins "B" Class Honors

Shooting the same brilliant brand of golf that he did in copping the qualifying round honors, Kenny Lawson, eighteen-year-old shotmaker from the Uplands Golf Club, annexed the city amateur crown, Monday, at the Royal Colwood course, by defeating Harold Pretty, another Uplands youngster, in the scheduled thirty-six-hole final, 9 and 8. Lawson climaxed three days of great golf in lifting his first major crown. He started off by winning the medal laurels with a fine thirty-six-hole card of 144, four strokes in front of the runner-up, and then moved his way through the powerful field in sensational fashion to succeed Bob Morrison as the new titleholder.

G. E. Davies captured the "B" class championship by his 1 up victory over J. Barlow over the eighteen-hole distance. Davies also hails from the Uplands Club and was medalist in his class. Following the final, Premier T. D. Pastillo, assisted by Comte J. de Suanet, one of the Colwood club directors, presented the Sayward Cup, symbolic of the title, to Lawson, as well as the prize for being medalist.

TAKES BIG LEAD
Shooting the first nine in 34 and the last part of the round in 37, for a fine 71, Lawson reached the halfway mark 8 up. Pretty had a 75, a 40 going out and a 35 coming in, but he was erratic compared to the steady playing of the new champion. In the afternoon, Pretty tried hard to stay in the running for the crown, but Lawson's early lead proved too much for him to overcome and the match ended on the twenty-eighth green. A. V. Price, secretary of the British Columbia Golf Association, refereed the match.

CANADIANS WIN SENIOR BALL TITLE

Defeat Cafe Men 5-1 for Fourth Straight Victory—Drive Holness Off Mound

Checking in with a 5-1 victory over Poodle Dog Cafe nine, Monday afternoon at the Royal Athletic Park, Sons of Canada registered their fourth straight win in the post-season play-offs and retained the Senior Baseball League championship and the handsome Rittcher Cup which they won last season.

Bill Holness started on the hill for the Cafe squad, but was driven from the mound in the first inning with a four-run assault by the Canadians. Wilf Shoultice, young Twilight Baseball League product, replaced Holness and twisted good ball, holding the Sons to five widely-scattered hits, and one run.

Tommy Musgrave went the route for the Sons of Canada. He allowed nine hits, the same number as his teammates collected from the combined offerings of Holness and Shoultice.

YARROW TROPHY STAYS AT HOME

Sharp and Harris, of C.P.R. Bowling Club, Capture Doubles Event

By W. H. YOUGHILL

With a display of accuracy worthy of champions, the C.P.R. doubles team composed of G. P. Sharp and P. S. Harris, carried off the honors of the annual lawn bowling event, held at the Crystal Garden greens, under the auspices of the transportation company's representatives, and the outstanding event among lawn bowlers of the district during the Labor Day holidays.

As will be seen by the list of those well-known exponents of the game whom the winners were called upon to face, the new champions were furnished an opposition which called for championship form to overcome. How well they performed the task assigned them can be ascertained by a review of the scores of the various games in which they took part.

SPLENDID PERFORMANCES

The weather man was on his best behavior during the two days devoted to the contest, with the result that many performances of a high order were in evidence. However, there were so many of them that space cannot be spared to enter into details.

During the afternoon of Labor Day, one of the most noted and interested spectators was none other than E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who, during the time he was present, manifested a deep interest in the various contests.

Games in the preliminary and first rounds were played on Saturday, the results of which appeared in The Colonist of Sunday, and below will be found the manner in which the competition was concluded.

YARROW TROPHY STAYS AT HOME

Sharp and Harris, of C.P.R. Bowling Club, Capture Doubles Event

By W. H. YOUGHILL

With a display of accuracy worthy of champions, the C.P.R. doubles team composed of G. P. Sharp and P. S. Harris, carried off the honors of the annual lawn bowling event, held at the Crystal Garden greens, under the auspices of the transportation company's representatives, and the outstanding event among lawn bowlers of the district during the Labor Day holidays.

As will be seen by the list of those well-known exponents of the game whom the winners were called upon to face, the new champions were furnished an opposition which called for championship form to overcome. How well they performed the task assigned them can be ascertained by a review of the scores of the various games in which they took part.

SPLENDID PERFORMANCES

The weather man was on his best behavior during the two days devoted to the contest, with the result that many performances of a high order were in evidence. However, there were so many of them that space cannot be spared to enter into details.

During the afternoon of Labor Day, one of the most noted and interested spectators was none other than E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, who, during the time he was present, manifested a deep interest in the various contests.

Games in the preliminary and first rounds were played on Saturday, the results of which appeared in The Colonist of Sunday, and below will be found the manner in which the competition was concluded.

BETTING SWITCHES TO CHICAGO JEW TO RETAIN FIGHT TITLE

Welter Champion Is Picture of Fistic Perfection as He Continues Training for Battle With McLarnin Tomorrow—Jimmy Will Weigh in at 147—$150,000 Gate Expected

By EDWARD J. NEIL, Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—The Manhattan faithful today got their first glimpse of dapper, Barney Ross in action since the night four months ago when he stripped the welterweight championship from the shoulders of Jimmy McLarnin, and the sight was an eye-filling one, indeed.

Bigger, faster, sharper hitting, the glitzy-eyed youngster from Chicago's ghetto, first champion in all ring history to hold both the lightweight and welter crowns, was so impressive in his final heavy drill for his return bout, with the Vancouver Celt on Thursday night that the odds immediately edged from even money to 6 to 5 in his favor.

The prospect was for a gate around $150,000, when Ross dares the first-defense jinx that has dogged all welterweight champions in the past few years. Their first battle in May, when Ross won the decision, drew $194,000.

LOOKS PERFECT
Trained to the second, scaling 139 3-4 pounds before the workout.

Ross was the picture of fistic perfection as he hammered Jimmy Murray, a New York sparring partner, for two full rounds and did callisthenics, bag punching and rope skipping for a half dozen more.

"I've never hit so hard as right now," he grinned through the perspiration beads as he cooled out in his dressing room. "I've never been so strong or felt so well. You'll see a better fighter whip Jimmy this time; in a different way, I'll never stop punching until he drops."

Meanwhile, McLarnin remained in his camp at Orangeburg, N.Y., where he boxed Calvin Reed, negro welterweight, three fast rounds, and shook his mate repeatedly with a two-fisted bombardment and crashing rights to the head.

Jimmy is right at the weight limit, 147 pounds. Neither will do more than light exercise now before the weighing in Thursday afternoon.

Garden officials announced tonight that the fight would not be broadcast. It is expected to start about 9:45 p.m., E.D.S.T.

Security Prices Drift Lower at New York Mart

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP).—Financial markets had little appetite for post-holiday recoveries today and the downward drift of prices continued in most departments. Stocks were unable to climb out of the pit into which they slipped last week-end. Sales totaled 308,930 shares.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for ninety selected stocks showed a net decline of half a point at 72. Timidity engendered by the textile strike, it is feared, may retard market recovery seriously if the outlook lasts any length of time. Some of the metal shares were a trifle softer in the early hours, but most of these ended with only small fraction declines. American Telephone, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem steel and a number of others emerged with small advances. Case more than halved a two-point loss. Such issues as U.S. Steel, N.Y. Central, Santa Fe and National Distillers were only slightly lower.

Renewed pressure on United States Government issues, some of which lost as much as three-quarters of a point, provided the only feature in an otherwise dull bond market today.

In the foreign section, German Government 7½ lost seven-eighths of a point at 32 5/8, a new low.

WHEAT PRICES CLOSE HIGHER

Futures Gain Fractionally in Late Rally at Winnipeg Market

WINNIPEG, Sept. 4 (CP).—Wheat prices recovered from early weakness on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and converted a one-cent decline into a net gain of three-eighths to one-half cent. Slackening of hedging pressure due to week-end rains in Western Canada, and purchases by export houses and Chicago interests, accounted for the late rally. October wheat advanced to close at 71 1/2, December at 82 3/4 and May at 86 7/8 to 87 cents.

Foreign sales of Canadian wheat approximated 500,000 bushels.

Liverpool wheat declined about 2d under pressure of Argentine offerings.

Cash grains held steady. Coarse grains staged a late rally in sympathy with wheat.

MONTHLY INDEX OF CANADIAN BUSINESS CONDITIONS

ADJUSTED FOR LONG-TERM TREND AND SEASONAL VARIATIONS

COPYRIGHT 1934, MCCONNELL & FERGUSON LIMITED, RESEARCH DEPARTMENT

At August 1, the McConnell & Ferguson Index of Canadian Business Conditions registered 105.9 per cent below normal, a gain of one-tenth point over the month previous. One year ago, the index stood at 29.4 per cent below normal. Gains in the index have been steady since the low reached during February, 1933.

Two of the four component factors gained, and two lost ground. Freight loadings were off two-tenths point and electric energy output dropped back a similar amount. These losses were slightly more than offset by a six-tenths point gain in bank debits, and an improvement of one-half point in construction contract awards.

Business in the United States, according to the most reputable indexes, is just below the 80 per cent mark.

The following table shows the four component factors (corrected for seasonal variation, long-term trend, and necessary changes in price levels) as well as the combined weighted index.

	This Month	Last Month	Year Ago
Construction contract awards	75.8	76.0	64.3
Freight loadings	62.1	61.5	61.4
Bank debits	94.7	94.1	91.4
Electric power production	87.8	88.0	76.0
Combined weighted index	78.1	78.0	70.8

Stock Prices Drift Along Irregularly At Eastern Markets

MONTREAL, Sept. 4 (CP).—Traders on the Montreal Stock Exchange adopted an indifferent attitude on the resumption of trading after the long Labor Day week-end and issues drifted along irregularly for the greater part of the session.

Brazilian Traction was 3-8 lower at 10 1/4 and Canadian Pacific declined 1-2 at 13. International Nickel eased 5-8 at 24. Montreal Power closed at 31 1/2, off 3-8. The widest losses of the day were suffered by St. Lawrence Paper, preferred, at 56 1/2, and Canadian Cottons, at 56 1/2, off 11-2.

International Breweries rose 1-2 to 28 1/2, and Hollinger 20c at 19 1/2. Toronto Stock Exchange.

TORONTO, Sept. 4 (CP).—Traders came back from the extended week-end holiday in a pessimistic frame of mind regarding the immediate outlook for stocks and in today's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange industrial department, issues suffered a general decline.

Walkers, common, traded fewer than 300 shares and closed 7-8 down at 27 1/2. Industrial Alcohol "A" took a loss of 1-8. Brewery shares surrendered early gains.

Virginia Vane Says:

MARRY IN HASTE—WHEN IT'S TRUE LOVE, PROSPECTIVE BRIDE SHOULD BEAR UP AND WAIT FOR LOVED ONE

Dear Virginia Vane: I have got myself into trouble through trying to be unselfish. Two years ago I was in love with a young law student, who offered to stop school in order to marry me. Naturally, I didn't want him to do this, but there seemed to be no way of dissuading him. Finally, in desperation, I decided to marry another man of whom I was fond, and I thought I could make him happy. But now I find I still love the other boy, and my husband is very unhappy over it. I have been a good wife to him in a material way, but I can't give him my love, and he knows it. My problem now is that the boy I love is through law school and able to marry, but my husband threatens suicide if I leave him. Can you help me out of this mess?—B.

I wish I could help you, B., and I wish I could help your husband, too. At least you have accomplished your purpose in letting the boy you love finish law school. Sometimes I think ill-considered altruistic gestures cause more misery than all the world's combined selfishness. Wouldn't the truly unselfish course have been consistently to refuse to marry him until he was through school, while letting him know that you were waiting for him and helping him with constant love and encouragement? He couldn't have been very happy to hear of your marriage.

I admire you for the spirit in which you made your sacrifice, but I am afraid you were helped by an unconscious satisfaction at being so noble. Anybody can make an impulsive gesture: true courage consists in living out the gesture through the little, unheroic things. Great tragedy is easier to bear than the constant petty adjustments required of you by this marriage, which was once so dramatic and which has now become so commonplace.

If you leave your husband now, you will demonstrate that you used him for a temporary convenience—that you played with his life and happiness just to get yourself through a couple of years. I know you did not so into that marriage with the idea of getting out of it just as soon as the other boy was able to marry you, but that is how your husband would see it if you left him. Suicide seems to me a normal possibility.

Noble gestures are fine so long as you do not drag an unwilling third party into them. Human life cannot be used as material for your heroics.

And how about the law student? Now that you have put him through the agony of reconciling himself to your marriage, a process from which he has probably recovered by this time, would it be fair to involve him in tragedy again? If he married you now, he could have very little respect for your wringing out of obligations when they become tiresome. You would have dropped from a heroic height to a very humdrum plane, and I am very much afraid that pity for your humiliation would color his feelings. And then imagine his sense of guilt toward the husband whom you would both be injuring. I cannot see any possibility of happiness for any of you through such an action.

Thoughtless adherence to the trite maxim about lying in beds that have been made, can be devastatingly stupid, but this seems to be one case in which that maxim will save unpeppable misery. I know what you will have to go through in order to forget the boy you love, but I sincerely believe you will be less unhappy doing that than by disrupting two more lives. You have my sympathy and the hope that this infinitely harder kind of unselfishness will bring you some compensation.

SIS—Since this problem of class distinction raises itself for you, I am afraid that indicates an attitude which will cause you constant unhappiness unless it can be changed. If you marry this boy, each day will bring you confirmation of your fears, and you will both be very unhappy. You will not be able to hide your attitude, and he will be constantly hurt. That sort of hurt usually reverts itself on the one who causes it—that is, he will hurt you. And it's not true that you are not marrying a family along with a husband; unless he is an orphan without relatives. They will be a source of humiliation to you. His friends, too. You will disapprove of some of them, and try to make him give them up. I can see endless possibilities of unhappiness in such a marriage, with the inheritance of your attitude toward class distinction. Unless this should cease to be a problem even in your own mind, I should certainly advise strongly against marriage.

S. L.—I am afraid I cannot tell you how to win the love of a man you know only to speak to. I think you will have a better chance of getting acquainted with him if you do not try to force a friendship. Unfortunately, I know of no love potion which can be quietly administered to an acquaintance while saying: "How do you do?"

M. D.—I am sorry you missed the column which contained an answer to your last letter. There is even greater justification now, since this has lasted three years, for you to demand a plain statement of the young man's intentions. Be firm and pin him down.

Mrs. E.—Of course, gossip is worse in a small town, since there are fewer different types of people and the stranger is always feared. I should judge that your neighbors don't understand you, and that makes them vicious. Have you noticed that the person who is most apt to be victimized by gossip is the one who is suspected of a superiority complex? If you care about these people and what they say, why don't you be careful not to give an impression of superiority. Develop a genuine interest in them and then it will be easy to ask their advice and give them little confidences. I have seen a right-about-face on the part of a whole town just because the victim relinquished her aloof attitude and made an effort to be friendly. Naturally, I am not defending the gossips, but in fighting it your attitude is much more important than your actions.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"STOIC"

About twenty-four hundred years ago, there lived in Athens a teacher named Zeno. Zeno's ideas were so original and he attracted so many students that he soon became known as a philosopher.

Amidst an environment of self-indulgence, Zeno preached that the wise man was he whose reason alone controlled his actions; and that the mastery of the mind over desire could only be accomplished by freeing one's self from the tyrannies of passion, joy and grief; and resigning one's self to accepting the dictates of natural law. Zeno expounded his doctrines in the market place of Athens on a porch under a roofed colonnade—a type of structure called in Greek "Stoikos."

And it is this word which, first, describing Zeno's meeting place later identified his philosophy and ultimately gave us our English word "Stoic" in its modern and essential sense of a person who keeps his feeling under control.

Two men in a car went past the automatic signals and were stopped by a constable.

"I'm sorry," said the driver, quickly, "but I happen to be a doctor, and I'm taking a patient to the asylum in a hurry."

The officer was suspicious, and looked penetratingly at the passenger. But the latter was also quick-witted, and looking up at the constable with a serene smile, whispered: "Kiss me, sergeant!" They got away with it.

DEATH ON THE DIAMOND

BY CORTLAND FITZSIMMONS

SYNOPSIS

Since Pop Clark disbanded his famous Blue Fire-Bats ten years ago because the fans were growing tired of the invincible New York team, he has been living in the shadows. The season opens the sports writers, with the exception of Terry Burke of The Star, give them little chance and the gamblers are quoting 500 to 1 against their chances. Terry believes that the addition of Larry Doyle, the rookie shortstop who played such good ball with Fordham, Dutch Schatz, the first baseman bought from Baltimore, and Dick Moran behind the bat, has greatly increased the chances of the Blues, but the old-time baseball reporters josh him when he says he thinks he will set a bet down on them. They agree that Pop was a fun manager, but that the disbanning of the Fire-Bats injured him. They are interested in the first meeting on the diamond of Doyle and Al Whitper, the Philadelphia Runner's star pitcher, both of whom have been attentive to Pop Clark's pretty daughter, Fran, until Pop tells them to stay away. For some unexplained reason Pop does not want her to marry a baseball man. Whitper, blame Larry, the game is close when Larry comes to bat for the fourth time after Larry drops to avoid two bean balls, he walks out and drops Whitper with a right-hander's bat and is home out of the game. Philadelphia and one run behind when Whitper is stranded out a home run in the ninth with a man on base. As Whitper takes the home plate he staggers, falls and lies still.

CHAPTER III

When Whitper was carried from the field, a curious and eager crowd of players from both teams rushed over to see what had happened. The doctor pushed them back and after a moment's inspection called Pop Clark and the Philadelphia manager and held a whispered consultation. Whitper's body was being carried on to the clubhouse just as Terry Burke arrived, breathless from running. The men with the stretcher passed Terry and for a moment Terry's alert eyes caught a dull spot spreading on Whitper's shirt. Pop Clark, Walsh, the Philadelphia manager, and the doctor were talking rapidly.

"We'd better go on with the game," Pop suggested. "There's no point in letting them know out there what has happened. If we don't finish the game there's apt to be a riot."

After a hurried consultation, Pop and a substitute for Walsh strode out onto the field to take charge of the waiting and excited men.

Terry followed the doctor into the clubhouse and waited while he called the police. Outside, the fans were still shouting for the game to go on. There was a lull in the roar and Terry thought he heard the sharp crack of a bat hitting a ball. There was a lull in the shouting and then the doctor ripped Whitper's shirt off and made another examination. He shook his head.

"Deader than a doornail," he replied to Terry's quizzical look. "Shot right through the heart, too—clean as a whistle."

"But—" Terry began to protest. "I was in France and I know a bullet hole when I see one."

"Then he was murdered," Terry said.

"Looks like it, and whoever it was certainly knows how to handle a gun."

Terry was overcome by the news and for a moment was a human being and not a newspaper man. "Murdered!" he muttered; and then suddenly, as if the word set off some secret spring of action, he became all alive again, his eyes glowing.

"You're sure, Doctor?"

"I was never more certain of anything in my life."

"Is it a revolver wound?" Terry asked.

"Use your head, young fellow. Did you see anybody pull a gun on the field and shoot him?"

"No."

"He was shot through the heart, a perfect shot, and no gunman, I don't care how good he is, could have done that from the stands with a revolver."

"But—" Terry began a protest. "A rifle is the only thing that could have insured the accuracy of the shot."

"Then it could have been almost anybody, anywhere."

Terry made a dash for the telephone booth and gave his paper a scoop on the tragedy and a chance for a screaming head. Half an hour after the murder, The Star printed a sensational story of the crime. Terry's first conversation with the doctor had enabled him to give a version of the crime which none of the other papers had until the police released their findings.

When Terry returned from the telephone, the door opened and one of the special police came in with Detective Kelly, of the Homicide Squad.

"What's happened?" Kelly asked.

"He's been shot," the doctor replied.

Kelly walked over to the body and looked at it for a moment. "Made a first-class job of it, didn't they?"

"I called the police," the doctor said. "I didn't believe you would get here so quickly."

"I was taking my afternoon off and came up to see the game. I came in here to see what had happened. Did you call the local station?"

"I just told the operator I wanted the police," the doctor explained. "Then you will get the local station."

Kelly went to the telephone and called Centre Street, reported the case and asked permission to work on it. He came back looking rather satisfied. He was a tall, heavy-set man with thinning blond hair. He had a square-set jaw and rather mild blue eyes that gave the lie to the determination of his chin and straight-cut, rather cruel mouth.

"I'm going to work on this case," he announced to the doctor; and then running to Terry, "Who are you?"

"Terry Burke, of The Star."

"And you?" Kelly turned to the manager. "Why, you're Walsh, the Runner's manager, aren't you? It's a tough break for you. I'm sorry, old man. You needn't stay here now unless you want to—there's nothing you can do for him, poor devil."

"I'll be back in a minute. This Walsh has done something to me." Walsh hurried away.

Kelly turned again to Terry. "How did you get in here?"

"I ran down from the press box to see what had happened."

"And got a nice little scoop for your trouble. Well, you've had enough for one day; you'd better scram." Kelly's mouth flattened out into a straight line and his eyes lost all semblance of mildness. "But gee! Inspector!" Terry started.

"Yeah, I know. You guys are never satisfied, are you?"

"But it's great news and naturally I'd like to be on the inside if I could."

Kelly started to speak and then stopped. Terry watched him hopefully. "You were in the press box all through the game?" Kelly asked.

"Yes."

"Have you sent your stuff in to the paper?"

"I called them up and gave them the scoop."

"No, I mean the play by play account of the game."

"All but the last part, and I have that here in my pocket." Terry pulled out some sheets of paper.

"Well, I guess I'll let you stick around. I may need you to check with me as a go along."

"Thanks, Inspector."

"Where do you get that Inspector stuff? I'm just Bill Kelly, of the Homicide Squad. You stay here, see, but don't give anything to your paper without my okay."

Kelly turned to the doctor. "You say he's been shot?"

"Yes through the heart."

"Now, who did it and how?" Kelly mused aloud.

"The Doc thinks it was done with a rifle," Terry offered.

"Why?" Kelly swung toward the doctor.

"As I explained to this young man, this was an accurate shot and you couldn't trust a revolver from so great a distance."

"Where do you get this distance stuff?" Kelly demanded.

"Well," the doctor began, "it's possible, but not likely, that a man on the field fired the shot. If the shot was not fired from the field, then it came from the stands or outside somewhere. See what I mean? You can't command accuracy at too great a distance with a revolver."

"That's a good point," Kelly said. "Only I don't like it. If that bozo was shot with a rifle, it could have been done from almost anywhere, up on the bluffs, from some house-top, from the top of the stands."

"Or even from the elevated station," Terry suggested.

"Two policemen hurried in. 'Hello, Kelly, what are you doing here?' one of them asked."

"Just wandered over to see what the excitement was all about," Kelly answered. "And when I saw it was hot stuff, I called Centre Street to see if I could have the case. I'm on."

"What's up?" the second policeman asked.

"Looks like murder."

Pop Clark and Walsh, the Philadelphia manager, came in just as Kelly said "murder."

"It can't be murder," Pop said.

"It is, just the same," Kelly replied. "Unless the Doc here is off his base."

"Of course, some one would have to murder my best player just when I was winning the game!" Walsh was as mad as a wet hen.

"It's impossible!" Pop muttered, trying to grasp the implications of both Kelly and Walsh.

"I lost the game, didn't I?" Walsh snapped. "Lost it when I had it in the bag, too. Howan touched out a dead man and the verdict will have to stand. How could my men play ball after what happened?"

"Then the Blues won?" Terry asked.

"Don't be funny, young fellow! Why wouldn't they win?"

The tramp of feet and the noise of men bustling about in the locker-room could be heard plainly in the silence which followed Walsh's bitter speech.

Kelly turned to Pop Clark. "I want you to hold all the men, both teams, until I can have a chance to talk to them. You boys see to that, will you?" he instructed the policemen, "and," he added as an afterthought, "frisk all of them, both teams."

The men gone, he continued, "I'll get the medical examiner up here to verify the examination of this doctor. Is there some place we can go away from this?" he asked Pop.

"My rooms," Pop suggested.

They walked down the hall and when they were seated, Kelly said to Terry, "Take notes for me, will you, kid? They may come in handy." Then he turned to Walsh. "What do you know about Whitper?"

"Not a great deal. You probably know more about him than I do if you are a fan. He's been with us for three years now and was our best man. We got him in a trade from the Detroit Bears."

"Is he married?"

"Not that I know of."

"Then that eliminates a jealous wife from the picture. . . . Was he well liked on the team?" was the next question.

"No. He was too arrogant most of the time. I don't think any of the boys actually disliked him, but they left him pretty much to himself. He didn't pal with any one in particular."

"What did he do with his time?"

"He was great on the social stuff. He had good conversations and knew people in most of the cities. He was quite a hand with the ladies."

"That opens up quite a line for investigation. Did he ever have any trouble over women?"

"None that I know of except—"

"Walsh stopped and glanced at Pop."

"Except what?" Kelly demanded.

"He means my daughter," Pop said.
